Russia Shuffles Military Brass In New Rocket Strategy Trend

(UPI)—Russia shifted Marshal Semyon K. Timoshenko, one of her famous wartime generals, in an apparent major reshuffle of her top military brass.

A Moscow announcement said the 65-year-old marshal has been replaced as commander of the key military Byelorussian District. The post has been given to Colonel-General V. N. Komarov.

Timoshenko commanded the forces which halted the German advance on Moscow in 1941. Earlier, he made his name in Russia's Finnish campaign in the winter of 1939-40.

Fast Growing Trend

The move spotlighted a fast growing trend in the Kremlin's policy to remove the veterans of the last war in the light of the quickening strategic shift to rocketry.

The shakeup started early this year with the promotion of Marshal Rodion Malinovsky to the post of defense minister. Khrushchev first made him commander-in-chief of the Red Army to succeed Zhukov.

In April, Marshal Vasily D. Sokolsky, chief of staff of the armed forces, was retired because of his physical condition. His job was given to Marshal Matvei V. Zakharov, who was commander-in-chief of Russian forces in East Germany and had experience in mobile warfare.

Victim Of The Purge

Another victim of the purge was Marshal Ivan Koniev, conqueror of Prague and Vienna, who became head of the Warsaw Pact Force. He was retired at 63 and replaced by 57-year-old Marshal Andrei A. Grechko, a Ukrainian like Khrushchev.

Koniev was understood to have been associated with a group opposing Khrushchev's military reform inaugurated last January to carry out a mass reduction of the officers corps.

Two other Khrushchev men have come to power in the meantime. Leonid Brezhnev replaced the aging Marshal Kliment Voroshilov as head of state and Marshal Kiril Moskalenko became head of rocket forces when Marshal Mitrofan Nedelin was killed in an air crash.

Bloodmobile Visits Here Next Week; 125-Pint Goal Set

The American Red Cross bloodmobile will be on campus, for the first time in 1960, from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Tuesday, Nov. 15. The site for donations has been tentatively set for the recreation hall in the Administration Bldg. Confirmation of this site will be announced before the visitation date.

Persons wishing to make an appointment to donate blood may do so at the union activities office. Walk-in donations also will be accepted. The Red Cross urges all donors to eat a light meal and to avoid greasy foods before giving blood. A small snack will be served to each donor after his contribution.

Anyone between the ages of 18 and 60 may donate blood but persons under 21 must have written parental permission. Permission blanks will be available in the housing units, union activities office, Men's Gym, and the Women's Bldg.

The usual quota of 125 pints has been set for the visit. The highest number of pints of blood given since November 1958, the last time the quota was not reached, was 138 in November 1959. The bloodmobile, which visits the campus and community twice a year, collected 137 pints of blood from 157 persons in March of 1959.

Dr. Mary A. Watt, associate professor of health and physical education and chairman of the campus blood donation campaign, said, "People always seek ways to help when an emergency strikes. Here is a chance to help before the emergency. When blood is needed it is needed quickly. Make it a regular habit to donate twice a year."

Falcons To Play Cal Poly Benefit Tilt? Officials Awaiting Decision By NCAA

ALUMNI PRESENTATION—James F. Hof, left, director of alumni affairs presents a $100 check to Keith W. Trowbridge, Student Body president, to be added to the California Poly disaster fund. The check was presented in behalf of the Bowling Green State University Alumni Association.

IN MEMORIAM—More than 3,500 students and faculty filled the ballroom and overflowed into the corridors outside it Thursday to pay tribute to the California Poly football players who lost their lives in the airplane crash.

Bowling Green's post-season football game that never materialized last year finally may become a reality if permission is granted by the National Collegiate Athletic Association for a benefit game between the Falcons and either Long Beach College or Fresno State College of California.

The game, proposed Thursday by Los Angeles State College Athletic Director Dr. Fer-ron Losee, would be to aid the families of California State Polytechnic College team members killed and injured in the plane crash last week.

Officials of the Los Angeles Coliseum, which seats nearly 102,000 persons, agreed to rent the huge stadium for $1 the night of Dec. 2 to aid the benefit.

Normally the NCAA requires that applications for bowl games must be submitted a year ahead of the requested date. However, Losee said in view of the disaster that hit the Cal Poly team, he would go ahead and poll the NCAA special events committee.

The University also officially has cancelled the contract for a chartered plane flight with the Arctic Pacific Airlines to El Paso, Tex., Nov. 19 for a football game with Texas Western.

Athletic Director Harold Anderson said the flight actually was cancelled when the Federal Aviation Agency revoked the airline's license, and that future flying has not been ruled out by the University.

"Our main problem now is to find a way down to Texas," Mr. Anderson said. "It's practically impossible to secure a charter flight with a commercial airline for the trip."

The team may travel to El Paso by train, or split into groups and travel as regular passengers on several airline flights.

Mr. Anderson also said the University definitely is interested in playing one of the West Coast teams.

"I hope the NCAA realizes this is not an ordinary request for a team to play an extra game," Mr. Anderson said. "We want very much to play a game for the benefit of the Cal Poly families."

Fans donated a total of $787.90 in the collection taken by the Varsity Club at the end of the Southern Illinois-Bowling Green football game Saturday for the families of the 16 dead football players.

"We were pleased with the donations from the fans and felt the response was real good for the crowd size," said Dale Herbert, club adviser.

The University also donated the gate receipts from the game to the Cal Poly Memorial Fund.

Parliament Debating On Establishing U.S. Polaris Sub Base

(UPI)—Labor members of Parliament are demanding a debate in the House of Commons on the establishment of an American Polaris submarine base in Scotland.

Prime Minister Harold Macmillan announced previously the base would be installed north of Glasgow in February.

Shortly after the House convened, Labor's Emanuel Shinwell said discussion of the base was an urgent matter.

Although the opposition Labor Party has not officially opposed the base, 32 of its MPs have signed a motion protesting it.

"There are doubts whether the Prime Minister told the whole story," Shinwell said. "Consequently, there is a case for private members if not for the official opposition raising this issue at the earliest possible moment."

A considerable controversy has arisen over the extent to which Britain would be consulted in the launching of rockets.

"These are subjects of the gravest possible anxiety and the nation is entitled to have them debated in the House of Commons at a relevant time," he added.

Algerian Crisis Worries France

(UPI)—President Charles De Gaulle said last week that he is prepared to assume dictatorial powers if a grave crisis threatens France.

In a radio and television speech, De Gaulle also said he is prepared to appeal to the nations by means of a popular referendum if ordinary powers appear insufficient to cope with the situation.

"It is my duty if the country and the republic are threatened," he said in the nationwide broadcast, "to take any measures required by circumstances, and that might conceivably help speed up in a decisive manner a solution to the Algerian problem and at the same time save the State."

The pre-recorded speech was broadcast and televised throughout France and Algeria.

Nixon, Kennedy Head For Frenzied Finish

UPI — Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Senator John F. Kennedy zig-zagged across thousands of miles in almost frenzied campaign efforts, in the last days before the presidential election.

Kennedy faced a schedule which included a major television address from Chicago, while Nixon made a nightly TV appearance. President Eisenhower, campaigning on behalf of the Nixon-Lodge ticket, made a major speech in Cleveland and a televised address in Pittsburgh.

Meanwhile, both national party chairmen have made victory predictions.

Democratic Senator Henry M. Jackson and former President Harry S. Truman said in New York, "The Democratic ticket is going to win without any question or doubt."

Republican Senator Thurston B. Morton and campaign chief Leonard W. Hall declared, "The pattern of victory is now evident." They forecast a close popular vote and a "substantial" Nixon majority in the electoral court.

As fervor climbed in the attacks on opposition personality and party, the presidential rivals mocked each other's use of campaign support.

Nixon chided Kennedy for what the GOP candidate termed a "little boy manner." He warned voters not to follow "a piper from Boston down the road to disaster," and said that Democrats would come closer to Democratic principles by voting Republican than by following Kennedy.

Kennedy spiced his speeches with this statement: "I don't care if Cabot Lodge and Nelson Rockefeller and Barry Goldwater all prop Nixon up and push him forward. I don't care if they add Dewey, Landon, and Hoover to advise him how to win."

"A team does not run for the presidency," he added. "One man runs for president, one man runs for vice president, and the country makes its decision."

Former President Truman accused Nixon of trying to hide his party affiliation, in an attempt to swing Pennsylvania's 32 electoral votes to Kennedy.

In a reply to the charge made by Senator Jackson that the Republicans would not allow the October unemployment figures to be released until after the election, a spokesman from the Labor Department said this was "the normal procedure."

Other charges being made by both parties include that of President Eisenhower, who warned that election of Kennedy may bring "runaway inflation that would destroy the buying power of the dollar."

He added, "The White House is one place where we should not be dependent upon training the occupant for the job." This was a referral to Nixon's experience in world affairs, in an attempt to swing Ohio's 25 electoral votes toward the Republican candidates.

On the other side of the political fence, Kennedy accused Nixon of using "the blackmailer's tactic of distorted threats" in his handling of the farm issue. It was one of the most outspoken attacks Kennedy has made upon Nixon, during his furious campaign across the Southwest.

The Democratic nominee charged that Nixon's farm plan for consumption of surplus crops is a "boondoggle," and he said that his land retirement program would only "expand and continue the extinction of the family farm."

It is possible for either candidate to win today, according to pollster Elmo Roper. He refused to predict a winner because he "didn't understand" his own data.

Roper said his October polls showed a 9 per cent undecided voting population. These undecided ed voters, he said, "could continue to make the election close, or could give either man a landslide."

U.S. Officials Expect Khrushchev To Heal Rift With Red China

(UPI)—American officials said they expect Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev to try to heal his breach with Red China so he can concentrate on a Berlin offensive against the West.

They looked for him to make the attempt at a meeting of world communist leaders in Moscow next week. His success remains a question, but the conference could be decisive in shaping the course of U.S.-Soviet relations and Khrushchev's position at home.

U.S. officials said the Soviet chief will not be free to bring full pressure to bear on the Berlin and German issues as long as he is entangled in a dispute with China on ideological and other matters.

If he can ease his troubles with the Chinese Communists he then will be free to press ahead with his demand that the issue of divided Berlin be settled by May 1. Khrushchev says he also wants peace treaties with East and West Germany before September.

American authorities said they have seen no real narrowing of the gap between Russia and China despite Communist China's recent statement that perhaps Khrushchev was right in saying war with the West was not inevitable.

U.S. officials believe the two Communist powers were only trying to paint a better picture for the rest of the world while they prepare for a showdown behind the scenes at Moscow.

U.S. Surveys Bahaman Test Site

LONDON — The United States has requested and received British permission to survey the waters in the Bahamas area for a possible U.S. naval undersea weapons testing center there, it was disclosed officially yesterday.

DAYTON, OHIO—Mrs. Margaretta Cox, widow of the late James M. Cox, 1920 Democratic presidential nominee, died Sunday when a fire, apparently started from a cigarette she was smoking in bed, occurred in her second floor apartment. She was 70 years old.

SAN JUAN, PUERTO RICO—Puerto Rican political parties yesterday wound up one of the most bitterly contested campaigns in years, heightened by a clash between the island's three Roman Catholic bishops and Governor Luis Munoz Marin and his popular Democratic Party.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — AFL-CIO President George Meany demanded today that the administration immediately release October unemployment figures which he charged were being suppressed for political reasons.

In a telegram to Labor Secretary James Mitchell, Meany said "continued suppression" of the October statistics "can only be viewed as a deliberate denial to the public of pertinent information on the eve of the election for patently political motives."

Daily Flag Rites Set For 4 P.M.

University students will become more aware of the fact that the United States flag flies from the flagpole in the middle of campus when the Air Force ROTC begins retreat ceremonies this week.

At 4 p.m. every school day, a bugler will play the "Sound to Colors" and "Retreat," and the flag will be lowered in a ceremony which meets the specifications of military manuals.

Students crossing the campus when the flag is being lowered should stop, face the flag, and place their hands over their hearts, if they are in the near vicinity.

If they are at a point on campus where they cannot see the flag, the proper procedure is to stop and face the direction from which the music is coming.

Republican Candidates

Richard M. Nixon
Richard Milhous Nixon, Republican candidate for President, was born Jan. 9, 1913, at Yerba Linda, Calif. He was graduated from Whittier College in California and Duke University Law School, and served in the Navy in World War II.

He was elected to the House of Representatives at the age of 33, in 1946. He achieved nationwide fame for his work in the Congressional investigation of Alger Hiss.

In the 1952 elections he was chosen as Dwight D. Eisenhower's running mate and was elected Vice President at the age of 39, which made him the second youngest to hold that post. He was re-elected in 1956.

Nixon married Thelma (Pat) Ryan, a native of Ely, Nev., in 1940. They have two daughters, "Tricia," 14 and Julie, 12.

Henry Cabot Lodge
Henry Cabot Lodge, Republican candidate for Vice President, was born July 5, 1902, in Nahant, Mass.

He is the grandson of Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge, who fought President Wilson over the League of Nations. Lodge was graduated from Harvard and worked seven years as a newspaperman.

He was elected to the U.S. Senate in 1936 and 1942. After resigning for war service, he was re-elected in 1946.

In 1952 he managed the successful presidential campaign of Dwight D. Eisenhower, but lost his own Senate seat to John F. Kennedy. In 1953, he was named American Ambassador to the United Nations.

He married Emily Sears, a native of Beverly, Mass., and has two sons, George Cabot Lodge, assistant Secretary of Labor; and Henry Sears Lodge; and eight grandchildren.

Kennedy, a Harvard graduate, was cited for heroism as commander of a PT boat in the Pacific during World War II. At the age of 29, he was elected to the House of Representatives in 1946, and was re-elected to the House of Representatives in 1948 and 1950. He was elected to the United States Senate in 1952 and re-elected in 1958.

He married Jacqueline Bouvier, a native of Southampton, N.Y., Sept. 12, 1953. The Kennedys have a daughter, Caroline, who will be three on Nov. 27, and are expecting another child in early December.

Lyndon B. Johnson

Johnson was elected to the Senate in 1948 after winning the primary race by an 87-vote margin. In 1953, he became the Senate Democratic leader at 44, the youngest man ever chosen to this post by a major party.

Johnson married "Lady Bird"—Claudia Alta Taylor of Texas in 1934. They have two daughters, Lynda Bird, 16, and Lucy Baines, 13.

Wild October

Race For Congressional Seats Preceded By Political Bedlam

By Jerry Wolfson

It's been a wild October. Khrushchev pounded on the desks of the United Nations, Castro played with fire near the Cuban powder keg, Lumumba and Mobutu played hide-and-seek in Leopoldville, and Harry Truman swore at the Republicans.

Headliners in this wild melee of excitement have been the televised debates between Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Senator John F. Kennedy, who have waged a colorful battle for the occupancy of the White House. Political pollsters have had a field day trying to forecast the winner.

Late in September most of them agreed that Mr. Nixon would be President Eisenhower's successor. Then, as election day approached, they did a gradual about-face. Late in the campaign most of them gave a slight edge to Mr. Kennedy. Any way you look at it, it has been a real ding-dong battle.

Overshadowed by the furor and bedlam of October's interesting activities are the political campaigns being waged at the state level for seats in the House of Representatives.

This game of musical chairs takes place every two years. These elections do not reflect a tremendous amount of public interest but keen politicians keep a tense finger on the pulse of Congressional campaigns.

Despite the public's small degree of interest, the election of members to the House is important. These 437 politicians from every corner of the 50 states have a great deal to say about how our money is spent, who is appointed to what office, and how far we should go in world affairs. Many people forget that the President cannot do it alone. He needs Congressional approval for most of his activities.

Ideally, a Democrat President prefers a Democratic Congress. In the same manner, the GOP tries for a Republican President and Congress.

Today we have 284 Democrats and 153 Republicans in the House. Tomorrow the picture will be altered.

Political pollsters indicate that there are only 77 seats up for grabs. The remaining 360 seats are virtually cinched. Should the Republicans sweep all 77, the score would be Republicans 280, Democrats 207. Should the Democrats manage to round up all 77 seats, they would have a lop-sided 361 to 76 advantage.

These calculations show only the mathematical extremes. In more down to earth predictions, the pollsters estimate that the Democrats will take 19 seats from the Republicans and the GOP will unseat 36 Democrats.

In the event that the polls are reasonably accurate, we can expect the Democrats to have a 267 to 173 majority. The experts agree that the Republicans are bound to gain on their rivals but will be unable to dent the Democratic monopoly.

Exactly how big an edge the Democrats will enjoy depends on the results of the 22 elections in the "toss-up" districts in New York, Connecticut, Illinois, Indiana, and California. Political scientists report that the political climate is "hot" in these areas and the voters are fired up.

Does one-party control of the executive and legislative branches of the government mean that the controlling party will run things to suit themselves? Definitely not! Historians point out that many Presidents have received excellent with legislatures loaded with their own party members. By the same token, there have been cases where Presidents have received excellent cooperation from congressmen who belonged to the rival party.

This is probably brought about by the conservative wing of the Democratic party from the southern states. Combined, these congressmen have a total of 65 votes. They are often forced to join forces with the Republicans to block legislative measures they feel to be detrimental to their voters at home.

Tomorrow morning many politicians will begin packing their bags. Either Mrs. Kennedy or Mrs. Nixon will arrange to have the White House redecorated. Some incumbent congressmen will take a last look at the Capital Building while their replacements will make reservations for the trip to Washington, D.C.

Youth Prevalent In 1960 Race

Youth is the spice of life! This phrase is very relevant to the 1960 Presidential election. The next President of the United States, whether he be Richard M. Nixon or John F. Kennedy, will be the first President to be born in the twentieth century. Either would be the youngest President in more than 50 years, succeeding the oldest, Dwight D. Eisenhower, who was 70 years old Oct. 14.

Theodore Roosevelt holds all records for youth in the White House. He lacked 43 days of being 43 years of age when he moved up from Vice President to President on Sept. 14, 1901, after William McKinley was assassinated. Kennedy, if elected, would be nine months older than Roosevelt when the oath of office is administered next Jan. 20.

After finishing McKinley's term, Roosevelt was elected to a four-year term 12 days after his forty-sixth birthday, making him the youngest man ever elected President. Kennedy, if elected, would knock more than two years off that record. He is 43 years, five months, and 10 days old today.

Kennedy, therefore would be the youngest man ever elected President and the second-youngest to take office as President.

Nixon, 47, would be the fourth youngest to win the election. He was born on Jan. 9, 1913; Kennedy on May 29, 1917. Counting the intervening leap year, there is a difference of four years, four months, and 21 days in their ages.

Only six American Presidents have been younger than 50 when they took office: Roosevelt, 42; Ulysses S. Grant, 46; Grover Cleveland, 47; Franklin Pierce, 48; James K. Polk, 49; and James A. Garfield, 49.

1960 Presidential Race Is Closest In History

Most political experts and leading public opinion survey polls predict the 1960 presidential race will be one of the closest in the history of the United States, with Sen. John Kennedy the slight favorite. As to who will be the next president of the United States, the whole world should know by early tomorrow morning.

Because of the religious issue in this election, the majority of the political experts agree that the only intelligent prediction would be just a guess. One of the leading survey polls, Gallup, won't even make a prediction.

Three of the latest nation-wide survey polls showed Kennedy anywhere from six-tenths of a percent to 4 per cent in front of his opponent, Richard Nixon. The latest of these polls was released Oct. 26.

The most important development since these polls were taken is the entrance of President Eisenhower into the campaign and his endorsement of the Nixon-Lodge team.

Just how important President Eisenhower's influence will be will not be known until after the election. But many political experts are in agreement that his support of Nixon could swing the trend toward the Republican standard bearer.

In the home stretch Kennedy has tended to focus his appeal on so-called bread-and-butter issues and on what he claims is a decline in United States prestige abroad. At the same time, Nixon has attacked the "inexperience" of the Democratic candidate in the field of foreign affairs and his recklessness in fiscal matters.

Both candidates, in three months time, have traveled a distance of more than 100 thousand miles. Kennedy has visited 38 states, while Nixon has been in 47 of the 50 states.

The Nov. 7 issue of U.S. News and World Report has tabulated the findings of the nation's top political experts on a graph (pictured on this page) that shows what the outlook is to this date.

The results showed Kennedy ahead in 22 states with 282 electoral votes and Nixon ahead in 23 states with 205 electoral votes. Five states with 50 electoral votes were placed in the doubtful column. A total of 269 electoral votes is needed to win the election. Kennedy's 282 electoral votes thus would give him the victory over Nixon. Even if Nixon were to gain all 50 doubtful votes, he would still fall short.

However, some experts figure that Nixon could win by taking his home state of California with 32 electoral votes and three of the five doubtful states: North Carolina, 14, Minnesota, 11, and Kentucky, 10. This would give him a total of 272 electoral votes to 165 for Kennedy.

Experts are in agreement that the candidate who picks up the majority of the votes from among New York, California, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio, and Michigan, will most likely build up a big enough lead to win the election.

Election Precedents To Be Set By Either Presidential Winner

On this election day, citizens of Alaska and Hawaii will cast ballots for the first time to help elect the president of the United States. In doing so they will help elect the first president ever to have served in the U.S. Navy.

The next president will be the youngest chief executive in the past 50 years, and will succeed the oldest man to serve in that office. He will also be the first president since Andrew Johnson to have had previous service in both the Senate and the House.

Many Firsts

Although the election of either Senator John F. Kennedy or Vice President Richard M. Nixon will make these firsts a reality, only the outcome of the election will tell whether the United States shall have its fifteenth Republican president since the Civil War, its fifth Democratic president since the Civil War, its second Quaker president, or its first Roman Catholic president.

Kennedy would become the second man elected president while both his parents are living and while he is a member of the United States Senate. The parents of Ulysses S. Grant were living when he was elected in 1868. Warren G. Harding was a senator when elected in 1920.

Nixon's triumph would elevate a vice president to the presidency by election for the first time since the election of Martin Van Buren, in 1836. He would be the third president to have been the vice president, a senator, and a member of the House of Representatives. John Tyler and Andrew Johnson had served in all these four positions.

Nixon would be the second Quaker and the fourth youngest man to be elected president. He would be the fourth chief executive born west of the Mississippi. Harry S. Truman, Dwight D. Eisenhower, and Herbert C. Hoover were born in Missouri, Texas, and Iowa, respectively.

Ohio College Polls Give Nixon Edge In Election Race

The recent mock election at the University, in which students favored Vice President Richard M. Nixon over Senator John F. Kennedy for the office of President of the United States by a 65 per cent to 35 per cent margin, was in line with a state-wide college trend.

Student newspapers from other colleges in Ohio show these mock election results:

At Ohio University Nixon was the choice of students, 1,791 to 1,158, in a combined class officers-presidential candidates election.

At Xavier, students polled by a political science professor voted 53 per cent for Nixon, 42 per cent for Kennedy, and 5 per cent undecided.

John Carroll University students picked Kennedy by a 592-257 margin, while students at the University of Cincinnati reversed that ratio with 993 voting for Nixon and 597 for Kennedy.

At nearby Heidelberg College, 312 voted for Nixon, 73 for Kennedy, and three were undecided. The Vice President was also the choice at Wittenberg College by a 77 per cent to 12 per cent margin, and at Marietta College by a 72 per cent to 26 per cent total.

Press Club Party Will Feature Tabulation Of National Voting

Press Club's fifth election party, featuring up-to-the-minute returns of national, state, and local government elections, will get under way at 8 p.m. tonight. The party will be held in the ballroom, with the cooperation of the University Union.

Television and national wire of United Press International, via the machine located in the journalism department quarters, will serve as the sources of election information. Runners will rush the wire copy to the ballroom each half hour.

Thomas Thiebaut, a Press Club member who will be working at local election headquarters, will supply information on the local elections, also at half hour intervals.

TV Sets Installed

Three television sets, loaned for the event by Lahey Television Service, will be installed in the ballroom. Returns will be posted on three blackboards.

Members of the Press Club will answer telephone calls from students and Bowling Green residents, supplying the latest election information. The ballroom will be the only source of election news in the area during the evening.

Students should dial 0 for the University operator, then ask for election returns. They will be connected directly with the Press Club phone operators.

Women Can Stay

The election party will last until the Union closes. Mrs. Florence Currier, dean of women, said, "University women may obtain late permissions from their head residents."

The Press Club has invited all University students to take part in the election party. All residents of Bowling Green and other members of the University family also have been invited.

Richard A. Lenhart, program director of the University Union, and the Union Activities Organization have cooperated with the Press Club in planning the election party.

Light refreshments will be served to those who attend the election party.

Could Dark Horse Win Race? South Hopes This Will Happen

By Michael Pheneager

Today is election day—Americans decide, by ballot, who is to lead the nation for the next four years. This has not always been the case. The men who drafted the Constitution did not trust the people. This fear caused them to incorporate various safeguards against too much democracy.

Their greatest safeguard was the indirect election of the President. They made the people vote, not for the candidate, but for a group of electors, who would choose the President. This wasn't all. If no man had a majority of electoral votes, the selection was removed from the popular consideration still further. The House of Representatives would choose from the three men having the greatest number of electoral votes, but in the House voting, each state would have only one vote.

Our government has changed with the times. Today the electors feel compelled to vote for the man with the greatest number of popular votes. In most cases they are publicly pledged to vote for a certain candidate if elected.

We have democratized our constitution by evolution and not by amendment. Our electoral college system is still with us. So are its potential evils.

Today in the South there is a rather limited movement to give new vigor to some of the undemocratic provisions. The southern Democrats are trying to revive the old evils of the electoral college and add a few new ones in an effort to have minority government.

Southern Democrats are Republicans in sheep's clothing. Especially in their economic outlook do they differ from their Harvard-directed brethren to the north. They are economic conservatives.

The Southern Democrats in 1960 are in a bind. They don't like Kennedy because his ideas are too far to the left for their conservative upbringing, but they don't dare associate themselves too much with Nixon and the Republicans, whose economic policies they could swallow.

The answer arrived at by a few Democrats in a few states has been to place three slates of electors on the ballot—one for Kennedy, one for Nixon, and one slate of unpledged electors. If these unpledged electors win they could play enough havoc with our current democratic institutions to set back their development 50 years, if they are given a certain set of conditions.

Let's suppose for a moment that neither Nixon nor Kennedy receives a majority of the electoral votes in a very close election, and the few slates of unpledged electors win. A variety of things could happen. Since the vote of the electors is not immediate, the electors could bargain with the candidates. The candidate offering the most concessions or accepting certain terms can get the votes.

Another more likely possibility is that the election would be thrown into the House of Representatives. If each state with unpledged electors would decide on the same third ticket—and this would probably be arranged—the members of that ticket would be among the top three to be considered by the House. In the House each state would have one vote. Thus the smaller states and the less populated states would have greater bargaining power than they would under the electoral college system. It would be conceivable that the candidates sponsored by the unpledged states would win, or more likely that the Republican candidate would pick up extra strength he would need to win from Southern Democrats.

The ultimate result of such a situation would be a great deal of hard feelings. The man elected, if he did not have a majority of the popular votes, would have a hard four years. At the very least it would certainly lead to a movement to eliminate one of the greater dangers to our Democratic Constitution.

BG Defeats 5th Ranked Southern Illinois, 27-6

Falcon Harriers Fourth In MAC Championship

Bowling Green's varsity cross country team ran fourth in the annual Mid-American Conference championships last week end at Kalamazoo, Mich.

Only 21 seconds separated the Falcons' first and fourth finishers as Ohio University squeezed out the Falcons for third place by two points.

Western Michigan, led by Jerry Ashmore, won the title for the fourth straight year. Western had 22 points, followed by Miami with 62; OU, 79; BG, 81; and Kent State, 121.

The individual winner, Ashmore, won in a new course record time of 20:06.1. He was followed by teammate Richard Pond, 20:18;

Miami's David Emery, 20:32; and Steve Tekesky, 20:33; and another Bronco, Richard Green, 20:34.

Earning points for BG were Mel Turner, thirteenth in 22:22; John Schengili, fourteenth in 22:27; Carl Sheperd, sixteenth in 22:34; Bob Taller, seventeenth in 22:43; and Ken Swade, twenty-first in 23:23.

Falcon Coach Mel Brodt thought the team ran well. He said, "This was the best team effort the boys have put forth this year. They did a little better, teamwise, than I had expected them to do."

This week end the Falcons travel to Chicago to participate in the Central Collegiate Championships. Western will be the favorite.

TIMELY RECEPTION—Tom Hogrefe (84) latches on to one of Jim Potts' passes to set up one of the Falcons' three second-half touchdowns Saturday. Potts connected on seven of nine passes as BG handed previously unbeaten Southern Illinois a 27-6 defeat.

Falcons Chalk Up 18th Straight Victory; Prepare For Showdown Battle With OU

By Dave Young

The power-laden Falcons smashed their way to their eighteenth straight gridiron victory by downing previously undefeated and fifth-ranked Southern Illinois, 27-6, before 6,200 fans in University Stadium Saturday, setting the stage for this week's showdown battle with top-ranked Ohio University.

Ohio U's Bobcats notched their eighth victory in a row by blanking Marshall, 19-0, to tie Bowling Green for leadership of the Mid-American Conference. This Saturday's game, already a sellout, will decide not only the MAC championship, but the national small college championship as well.

Nearly a year ago the SIU Salukis had a three-game winning streak snapped by the Falcons as BG staged a last-half uprising to win 23-14. Last Saturday the Falcons broke another Saluki winning streak—this one seven games.

By defeating SIU, Coach Doyt Perry maintained his record of never having lost a non-conference game. The Falcons have defeated 17 straight foes in independent games.

"We were beaten by a mighty fine ball club," commented SIU Coach Carmen Piccone after the game. "BG uses tremendous pursuit patterns. And they're very well coached. I might add." In talking about what he considered to be the big factor in the game, Coach Piccone remarked: "The Falcons not only have more depth than we do, but they played harder."

Coach Perry, while he was happy his team won, said, "We made too many mistakes out there. We won't be able to do that next week." Perry was speaking of the five fumbles the Falcons lost.

Bob Reublin, with 64 yards in 17 carries, was the leading ground gainer. Don Lisbon churned out 56 yards in a dozen carries.

Wayne Mauk picked up 42 yards in seven carries and had a punt return of 34 yards. Al Junior had the longest punt return of the game with one of 43 yards. Roger Klicman gained two yards less than Mauk in the same number of carries. Klicman's touchdown in the fourth quarter gives him the team leadership in total points with 26. Lisbon moved to within two points of Klicman with his six-pointer in the second quarter.

Jim Potts continued to find his targets as he completed seven of nine passes for 102 yards.

Asa Elsea booted the Falcons' first three extra points, but missed on his fourth try as the ball sailed wide to the right of the goal posts. Elsea has converted on 18 of 20 attempts.

The Salukis' little all-American candidate, Amos Bullocks, was held to his lowest output of the season as he managed to gain only 37 yards in 16 carries. He had been averaging nearly 105 yards per game.

After a scoreless first quarter, the Falcons put together a 47-yard drive with Lisbon going two yards off right guard for the touchdown. Elsea's kick sent the Falcons into a 7-0 halftime advantage.

Late in the third quarter the Falcons went two touchdowns ahead as Potts climaxed a 48-yard drive with a one-yard sneak. The PAT was good and BG led 14-0 going into the final frame.

With just three seconds gone in the fourth quarter, Klicman shot over from the one and the PAT gave BG a 21-0 margin.

On the kickoff Chuck Comer booted an onside kick right into the stomach of an SIU defender. The ball bounced back and the charging Falcon line fell on the loose pigskin. Comer scored the Falcon's final touchdown nine plays later as he plunged the final yard. The PAT try was wide.

The Salukis scored late in the final quarter as SIU quarterback Vern Pollock lofted a 38-yard pass to end Joe McCormick on the BG one-yard line. Pollock sneaked in on the next play to make the final score 27-6.

Players Are Ready For Bobcats

This Saturday, before an estimated sellout Dad's Day crowd of 12,660, the nation's two top small college gridiron powerhouses will clash to determine the national and Mid-American Conference championships. Ohio University will be after its ninth straight victory, while Bowling Green will be seeking its nineteenth straight.

Coach Doyt Perry, who feels that OU could play on even terms with any team in the country, stated: "We'll have to play perfect ball and then get most of the breaks to beat them."

The Falcons feel that they are ready, and they don't fear the Bobcats.

Dick Newsome said: "We still haven't reached our peak. We take our games one at a time, but we've been looking forward to this Saturday's game all season long and we're ready for OU now."

Bernie Casey, who didn't play against SIU because of a pulled leg muscle, said: "I'll be ready and so will the rest of the team."

Al Junior stated: "I think the fellows will come through. We aren't afraid of OU, but we aren't overconfident either."

OU Downs Marshall; Kent Defeats Western To Clinch 3rd Place

Ohio University warmed up for Saturday's title game with BG by downing Marshall, 19-0. OU was held to a 7-0 lead after three quarters of play, but pushed across two tallies in the final period to wrap up its fourth straight shutout win of the season.

Kent State clinched third place in the MAC by edging Western Michigan, 10-3, in Kent's homecoming. Western grabbed a 3-0 lead, but Kent rallied in the second quarter for a touchdown, two extra points, and a safety for the win.

The Miami Redskins spoiled Toledo University's homecoming with a 30-13 trouncing of the Rockets. Toledo has not won a conference game in two years. Miami finished fourth in the league standings, its lowest finish in MAC history.

SPLASHERS LOSE—The Splashers, University women's swimming team, suffered its first defeat of the season as they fell to Michigan State, 52-38, Saturday. One pool record was broken in the 100-yard freestyle, by a Spartan swimmer.

Frosh Grid Triumph Is Like Varsity Game

The Bowling Green freshman football team climaxed a successful 4-1 season Thursday with a 22-19 victory over Western Michigan at Kalamazoo.

Trailing 18-8 with less than five minutes left in the game, the junior Falcons rallied for two touchdowns to gain the triumph. It was their third straight win over MAC foes, clinching at least a share of the MAC frosh championship. The game was almost a repeat of the WM-BG varsity contest, as a blocked kick with less than two minutes to go proved again to be the Broncos' downfall.

Western Michigan got off to an early 7-0 first quarter lead when John Archer dived one yard for the score. But Bowling Green roared right back from its own 42-yard line to take back the lead. Paul Freisner scored on a three-yard run and Bill Steadman ran the conversion to make the score 8-7, for the Falcons.

Then, late in the second quarter, Western Michigan took the lead once more. It was Archer again, this time lunging two yards for the score. Gary Whitaker blocked the extra point, but the Broncos led at the half, 13-8.

Western Michigan bounced back after the half to score again. Archer notched his third of the day with a five-yard off-tackle slant. The extra point was wide, but the Broncos led, 19-8. That lead held up until late in the fourth quarter. Falcon quarterback Dick Flick climaxed a 50-yard scoring drive with an eight-yard run for the touchdown. Barry Weaver ran the extra points, and Bowling Green was closing in, 19-16.

The roof fell in on the Broncos with only 1:25 to play. Jerry Ward and Ken Burke broke through to block a Western Michigan punt, and BG recovered on the Bronco 15. On the first play, Flick sped around his end and into the end zone for the winning touchdown.

Secrest Urges Unlimited Competition

Speaking to this year's largest Cobus audience, Commissioner Robert T. Secrest, of the Federal Trade Commission, said, "The future of this nation lies in free unrestricted competition. Destroy that competition and the United States will be destroyed."

More than 300 students and faculty members listened to Mr. Secrest's hour-long presentation on the "Function of the Federal Trade Commission in a $500 Billion Economy," at the Nov. 2 meeting.

In a forceful manner, Mr. Secrest stated that it is the function of the FTC to enforce laws passed by Congress regulating and maintaining free competition in business.

"Nine times out of 10," stated Mr. Secrest, "if a man knows the law, he'll think twice before he breaks it. If a corporation has broken the law, and it can be proven, we at the commission want to know about it."

Mr. Secrest enumerated Congressional legislation that the FTC is pledged to uphold.

The Clayton Act, which prohibits price discrimination not based on cost, and the Robinson-Patman Act, an amendment to the Clayton Act, were the acts Mr. Secrest stressed.

"Narrowing competition with an interlocking directorate is illegal," said Mr. Secrest. "Article 7 of the Clayton Act states that it is, and if the FTC finds this occurring in a corporation, as it did in the Pillsbury-Clorox merger, it will refer this to the Federal Court of Appeals where it will be acted upon."

"Another kind of corporation we don't like is the prevaricator. When a liar practices unfair trade through false advertising, we kick him under the table—and keep him there," the speaker warned.

Mr. Secrest said FTC investigations are being conducted every day throughout the nation, keeping business in line with the law. "More than 2,600 investigations by different departments of the FTC are under way today, seeking out violators in advertising, import and export, and industry."

In concluding, Mr. Secrest said, "Speeches similar to this one are given in industries and businesses around the nation. Our job at the FTC is not only to enforce the laws of business but to make business aware of these laws so they will obey them, making our job of enforcement a little easier."

Featured in tomorrow's Cobus discussion will be Emerson W. Swan, vice president of the Operations Roadway Express Inc., of Akron. Title of the discussion will be "The Motor Carrier Business Is Complex; So Are Its Problems."

No Tickets Available, Says Forrest Creason

According to Forrest Creason, athletic manager, all tickets for the Ohio University game are sold. There will be no general admission tickets on sale Saturday before the game. An estimated capacity crowd of 12,000 is expected. Gates will remain closed during halftime of the game and no one without a ticket will be allowed into the stadium.

Lovers, Lavaliers, And Liars

By Skip Ferderber

In the social order of the Greek world, there has evolved an elaborate system of courtship, with certain recognized steps. In order, these are: ringed, sweatshirted, lavaliered, pinned, engaged, and married. Steps after that are out of the realm of Greek control. In recent years, certain people with keen, crafty minds have taken this beautiful system of hooking a mate and have used it to their own insidious advantage. This is a report on the "Lavalier Lover."

To look at this master of deceit, one would not think that beneath his calm exterior there beats a heart of cold steel; however, as statistics prove, these are the types who often are most prone to the practice of beguiling the sweet innocents of the world.

Ferderber

Equipment needed for this plan of action is fairly easily obtained. The schemer must belong to a fraternity and have some capital to invest in a ready supply of lavaliers. Then he goes to work. First, he dates a girl, sweet, shy and innocent. ("You are beautiful, gorgeous, I'm mad about you, you are the end, my dream.") Then one night, when the stars shine brightly and the air is full of ketchup smells, he puts around her fragile neck the lavalier. The fun begins.

He hops in his car the next week end and goes to see a girl he once knew. He has been writing to her and has convinced her of his integrity. ("You are an autumn leaf, my desire, my passion. You swing.") And with the little white box in hand, he drives to her house, leaps out of his car, pulls her violently to him and places the slender golden necklace about her neck. Number 2.

During a vacation, he travels, let's say, to Colorado. He meets a girl ("You are what I've waited for, my beauty, my pet, you're a gas."), and number 3 is hooked.

Suddenly, all is lost. The Girl Back Home decided to pay a visit to Her Boy, far away at college. She bursts in the door of his fraternity house, the lavalier brightly shining around her neck, and yells, "Hello, darling!"

Meanwhile, "Darling" is sitting in the house with his arm around Mate Number 1, the same magic jewelry around her neck. And in his pocket is a letter from number 3, which falls out, dropping the returned lavalier it contained into his lap in plain sight.

The moral of this story: Sweat-shirts are much cheaper.

Carpenter, Sofios Discuss Semantics At Books And Coffee

Semantics, or the study of the evolution of language, the significance of words, and the development of their meanings, was the subject of discussion at Books and Coffee Nov. 3.

The two speakers were Dr. Richard C. Carpenter, associate professor of English, and Nicholas Sofios, a graduate student in education.

The speakers attempted to show that the dictionary and the philosophical meanings are not as precise as they should be.

Before questions were asked, the speakers discussed Korzybski's theory, which deals with all forms of semantics from actual sight to high levels of abstraction. They also discussed Johnson's theory that without testing, our thinking becomes very abstract and more difficult to explain.

Thursday's meeting will feature Dr. George Herman, assistant professor of speech and a discussion of "Parkinson's Law," a book of very light satirical writing. The meeting will be held in the Ohio Suite of the Union at 3:30 p.m.

150 BG Students Will Travel For Psychology Confab

Approximately 150 undergraduate and first-year graduate psychology students from Bowling Green and other area colleges and universities will compare ideas next spring at their annual Psychology Colloquium. It is scheduled for early 1961, but no definite date or place has been set.

The colloquium was originated here about six years ago by Dr. Mylen Fitzwater, former professor of psychology, and Dr. Cecil M. Freeburne, now chairman of the department. It is strictly a student activity, and its main purpose is to familiarize the students with group activity methods and principles by having him submit his own research material to the group in a professional manner.

The meeting place rotates from one college or university to another. Last year it was at the University of Michigan.

Usually, at the end of the program, a symposium of accompanying faculty members summarize the topics presented by the students.

Greeks Collect Toys For Christmas Party

Members of Phi Mu sorority and Delta Tau Delta fraternity are acquiring toys for needy children as a joint project.

Tomorrow the groups will be canvassing Bowling Green residences to obtain old toys which they will repair themselves. The toys then will be given to the children at a Christmas party.

Most of the students are members of the Insurance Club, which sponsors the trip. Wilbur J. Abell, associate professor of business administration and adviser to the Insurance Club, is accompanying the students.

During their visit, the students will have an opportunity to observe underwriting, agency relations, accounting, filing, fire-mapping, fire prevention, legal procedures, bonding, and settlement of claims.

Students making the trip are John R. Brownlee, James R. Chick, David A. Crossmier, Walter A. Felgar, Thomas B. Gottdiner, William A. Magerkurth, William Slaughterbeck, Judith L. Walter, James G. Young, and Joseph V. Young.

Groups may hold open houses on Saturdays and Sundays. They must be scheduled and must appear on the Calendar of Events, compiled in the student activities office.

Corsages are not customary at all-campus social events with the exception of the U-A Prom.

Decker Predicts Kennedy Win In Talk To Accounting Honorary

Dr. Russell Decker, associate professor of business administration, predicted that Senator John F. Kennedy will win the presidential election, in a talk at the meeting of Beta Alpha Psi, accounting honorary fraternity, Oct. 26.

Dr. Decker based his prediction on the following: (1) Nixon is a member of the party in power, which always is creating enemies; (2) Kennedy made a better appearance on television in the debates; (3) As times become harder, farmers switch their votes to the Democratic party; and (4) Senator Kennedy's social security program appeals to older people.

A few of the factors he said might overrule his prediction are the religious issue, and the fact that "Nixon is the first Vice President to be more than a mere figure-head."

"Neither candidate has an outstanding personality and both candidates are having a difficult time finding an issue on which they disagree," said Dr. Decker.

The next meeting of Beta Alpha Psi, will be at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, Nov. 14, in the Union. James L. Galloway, University placement officer, will be the speaker.

There will be an initiation of new members and Key pictures will be taken at the next meeting.

Opening Date Doubtful For New Gymnasium

"Standing room only" may be the situation when the 1960-61 edition of the Bowling Green basketball team takes the floor on Thursday, Dec. 1, for its opener against Hillsdale College.

It was hoped that the new Memorial Hall would be completed by the opening game, but, according to F. Eugene Beatty, director of building and facilities, "The exact date of the completion of the new gymnasium is not known. The workers now are installing the seats and the backboards, but a great deal of work is still facing them."

Some of the work that remains is testing the sound and heating systems and completing construction of the various electrical systems.

Then the building must be approved by the state of Ohio and accepted by President Ralph W. McDonald. If the building is not completed in time, the game with Hillsdale will be played in the Men's Gym. This would present a problem, since the seats from the Gym are now in Memorial Hall.

Artist Series Fills Ballroom

By Herbert Chatkay
Instructor in Music

Pianist Eugene List and violinist Carroll Glenn played the program for the second Artist Series event with warmth and authoritative grasp of style Thursday evening. The program was enthusiastically received by the audience, which filled the ballroom and brought the artists back for four encores.

The artists began the program with "Sonata in E Flat." The delicate Bach piece was played that way, yet with a singing tone from both piano and violin. Mr. List achieved an interesting cello-like sound in the bass, especially in the first movement. In Chopin's "Andante Spianato et Grande Polonaise Brillante," Mr. List again had a singing tone, both in melodies in the right hand, and in the left hand accompanying figures, which are not often treated as sensitively. In his other solo works, by Debussy and Ravel, the pianist demonstrated fine facility, especially in repeated notes and octave-like passages.

Miss Glenn sustained long melodic lines in the "Fugue in G Minor" from Bach's "Sonata No. 1, for Violin Alone," and as in all of her playing, was remarkably on pitch. Throughout the range of her instrument, she possessed a full, pleasing tone.

Mr. List and Miss Glenn obviously enjoyed what they were doing, and this reviewer looks forward to hearing them again and to the other presentations of the University Union.

Door to door soliciting in the dormitories, by students or commercial solicitors, is not permitted. Any soliciting is to be reported to the dorm head residents.

Fees, tips, and other gratuities to any member of the University Union staff are not permitted.

2 Groups Hold Scavenger Hunt

A candy sale and scavenger hunt are to be combined as the Married Couples and Wives Club begin a drive for funds Saturday, Nov. 19.

Working in teams, club members will sell candy from door to door in Bowling Green. Two gift certificates from LaSalle's will be presented to the team which sells the most candy and locates the items requested in the scavenger hunt.

Proceeds from the event will be used to help defray the costs of the annual Married Couples banquet.

Information on the Married Couples Club will be distributed to all married students living in the Bowling Green area this week.

Area AF Head Visits BG Unit

Col. Kenneth R. Strauss, United States Air Force area commandant, visited Bowling Green for an inspection of the University's AF-ROTC installation Nov. 3. As area commandant, Col. Strauss is a direct representative of Gen. William J. Bell, AFROTC commandant.

Capt. John V. Stroble, assistant professor of air science, stated prior to the inspection that the visit would serve as a direct contact between the University and AFROTC headquarters at Maxwell Air Force Base, Montgomery, Ala.

In a special ceremony during the inspection, Col. Strauss reviewed the drum and bugle corps and an honor guard formed by several members of the drill team.

Other events on the day's program included a meeting with Lt. Col. Fred W. Siebert, chairman of the department of air science, and his staff, and a staff briefing held by AFROTC cadets. Col. Strauss also met President Ralph W. McDonald and several University officials, and toured the AF-ROTC's new facilities in Memorial Hall.

Limbach Heads 2 Army Groups

Cadet Col. Fred W. Limbach is the first student in the University's history to head both the Army ROTC battle group and the Pershing Rifles, national military honor society, during the same semester.

Limbach's student command totals 421 men in the battle group, including the 125 members of the Pershing Rifles.

The Army's department of military science and tactics reports this is the largest cadet corps since the Korean conflict.

Other cadet officers in the battle group are Lt. Col. Robert J. Reublin, Lt. Col. James S. Phillips, Major Frank Golle, Major Frank D. Shanower, Major Frederick Semelka, Capt. James A. Brown, Robert M. Boulton, David A. Crossmier, Duane A. Slack, William R. Hart, David L. Radlinski, David M. Molchen, and Michael E. Pheneger, Lt. James R. Rothe, and Lt. Don P. Fellers.
